The with of the stratum is not yet known, but it has been pen-etrated through a cave to a distance of three miles. The discovery is reported by a non-professional man, and until proper scientific investigation is made it cannot be known whether this cave is a fissure penetrating the stratum itself, or whether its walls are merely an execrescence from the great mass. But be that as it may, the mountain would appear to furnish an answer to the biblical question, "If the saft hath lost its savor, wherewith shall it be melted?"
